

RUBIC'S KUBE

Written by

Bernard Mersier

BLACK SCREEN:

"Fear is another word for control."

~Bernard Mersier~

FADE IN:

Loud thuds are heard as we come in on a large household garbage can with a black, eight gallon bag inside.

MAN (V.O.)

The words from a man are the laws straight from "God" and no one, especially a woman should question him. Understand, no man wants to treat a woman like trash because only whores deserve that treatment. But... The slightest thing can turn a woman into a whore, and that leaves a man with no choice but to treat her as "God" says she should be treated. Women have no idea what they want unless we tell them. Her mother and the mothers before them were taught to clean, cook and obey. The exact reason why God created them. Add all of this together, and now you know why men rule the world and shouldn't be questioned. But... What happens when you run into a woman who thinks otherwise, and feels she has free will and shouldn't accept what a man says or condone his actions?

Inside the bag is the man's head with the eyes wide open, along with his entrails.

MAN (VO.) (CONT'D)

She shows him that man is no different from anyone else. There's no love in life because people are more focused on the lead role, instead realizing both parties are the starring actors in this movie of life unfolding.

BLACK SCREEN:

"Just because your eyes are open doesn't mean you're not dead."

~Bernard Mersier~